_DEFINIR ARTE DIGITAL

"A arte digital transformou-se numa disciplina que agrupa todas as manifestações artísticas realizadas por computador. Por definição, estas obras de arte devem ter sido obrigatoriamente elaboradas de forma digital e podem ser descritas como uma série electrónica de zeros e uns. (...) No entanto, nem toda a representação digital é arte. A fronteira é imprecisa, em especial porque a arte digital combina em grande medida arte, ciência e tecnologia."

"Corresponde à época em que vivemos."

Wolf Lieser (2009)

"No seu sentido mais estrito pode definir-se a produção digital como arte quando conceptualmente se utilizam as possibilidades do computador ou da internet com um resultado que não seria alcançável com outros meios."

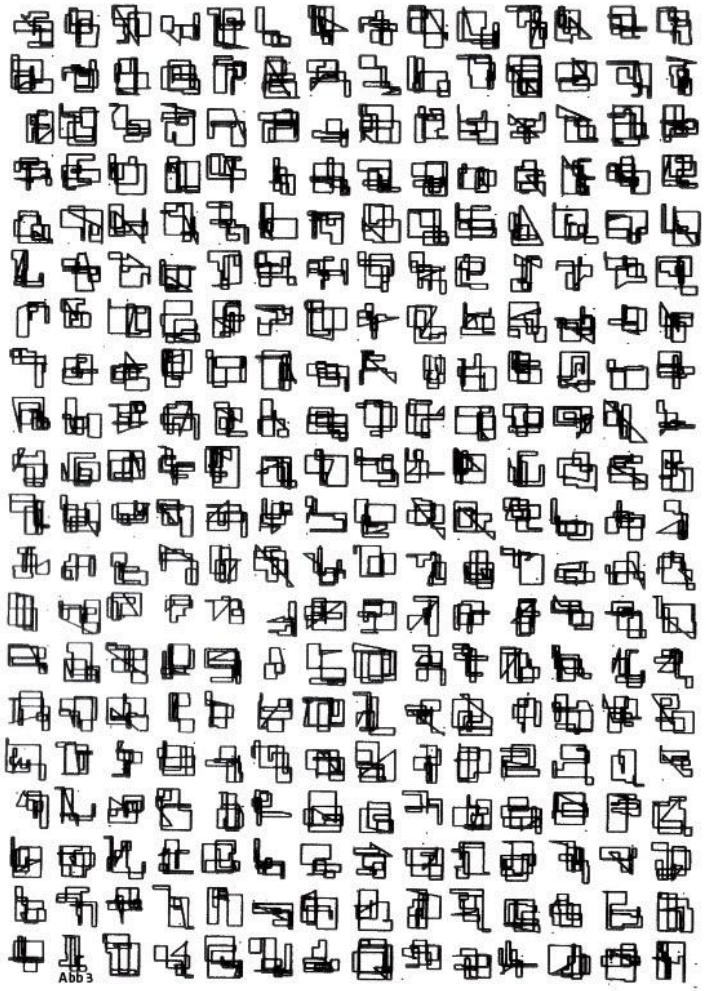

"(...) pertencem à arte digital as obras artísticas que, por um lado, têm uma linguagem visual especificamente mediática e, por outro, revelam as metacaracterísticas do meio."

Wolf Lieser (2009)

Portraits by Eva and Franco Mattes aka 0100101110101101.ORG

«If printers ever get really big, like a twenty by thirty or thirty by forty, than it would really be great»
Andy Warhol

Through 2006 and 2007, Eva and Franco Mattes (who are also known as 0100101110101101.ORG) created portraits of avatars, i.e. the customizable personas that people inhabit in online virtual worlds. Addressing the new online environments as places to socialize, nurture celebrity, and perhaps leave one's real self behind, these images capture members of the popular online virtual world Second Life, combining the traditions of glamour photography with the brilliant colors and hard-line aesthetics of the game-world. The Mattes' work questions both the traditional role of portraiture and the nature of the morphing relationship between identity and public presentation in virtual worlds. Like Andy Warhol's legendary Factory, Second Life is about the creation of alternate identities, of building and living a fantasy.

etoy.CORPORATION is art and invests all resources in the production of art beyond traditional dimensions. The aim is to take the resources, tools and legal framework of our time to create a corporate sculpture – a shareholder company registered in Zug/Switzerland that has no other purpose than cultural value. The privately held company etoy.CORPORATION SA issues etoy.SHARES (more information) to compensate its artists, investors, collectors and supporters. etoy.VENTURE association was founded 1994 and is registered in Zurich. This non-profit organization operates etoy.TANK-PLANTS in various cities, takes care of etoy.SOCIAL-ACTIVITIES, runs etoy.DAY-CARE and establishes MISSION ETERNITY – a digital cult of the dead. Watch out for the etoy.com DOMAIN (for virtual products) and the etoy.HOLOGRAM (for physical products) – the only valid proof of etoy.ORIGIN. The artist's signature is no adequate indicator of authorship in the etoy.UNIVERSE. Products that can be downloaded from other domains or lack the 25 x 25 mm label are low quality replica that can compromise your intellect and sanity. Collectors holding etoy.WORK issued before January 2006 can apply for validation and holographic certification: CONTACT INVESTOR RELATIONS

THE TOYWAR-STORY: the TOYWAR.com resistance shelter was installed in november 1999 to protect etoy from aggressive take-over attempts and to recruit TOY.soldiers and journalists for the historic domain name battle between the etoy.CORPORATION (legendary internet art giant, incorporated 1994) and eToys Inc. (market cap. at this time: more than 8 billion dollars). after the etoy.SHAREHOLDERS (art collectors and fans) rejected a ridiculous offer of $516,000 for the etoy.BRAND (registered TRADEMARK for experimental entertainment and cultural business operations), eToys Inc. filed a naive lawsuit against etoy. the toy retailer accused etoy of unfair competition, trademark delusion, security fraud, illegal stock market operation, pornographic content, offensive behaviour and terrorist activity.

this strategy failed terribly: the etoy.SHAREHOLDERS, specializing in and awarded for surreal incubations, cultural viruses and impact management decided to fight and turned the case into a TOY.harbor of e-commerce: the first TOYWAR.mission was to establish global alliances and to spread the information. long term business associates like rtmark.com, the thing.net or hell.com immediately started to promote the crisis alert. 1798 activists, artists, lawyers, celebrities and journalists were selected and recruited between november 1999 and february 2000 to join the playful TOY.army. TOYWAR worked on the base of self organized, multi-level intelligence - possible only on the net ...like a swarm of bees, hundreds of well-informed people, industry insiders, kids and legal experts contested the aggressor on every level (filing counter court cases, infiltrating customer service, pr departments, the press, investor news groups and also on the level of federal trade commission etc.). more than 300 articles (New York Times, Wall Street Journal, Le Monde, CNN) reported the story and 250 resistance sites and net-shelters were established. result: within 2 months the eToys Inc. stock (NASDAQ: ETYS) dropped from $67 (the day the battle started) to $15 (the day eToys Inc. finally dropped the case). TOYWAR was the most expensive performance in art history: $4.5 billion dollars. a glorious victory for the etoy.CORPORATION which compensated activists with etoy.SHARES (INTERNATIONAL ART MERKET SYMBOLS EYA / EYM - postmasters gallery new york): in march 2000 hundreds of brave TOY.soldiers transformed into etoy.CO-OWNERS with voting rights.
